Roman to পূর্ব নাগৰী

Type in Roman letters, write in the Eastern Nagari script

No script keyboard? Just start typing.

Type words the way they sound on any keyboard, and each one turns into Assamese or Bengali script as you type. It installs like an app and works offline.

A note on Majuli mask-making, typed entirely in Roman letters, with the barnamala chart open

`amar ga^wor OItihy`
আমাৰ গাঁৱৰ ঐতিহ্য

`majulIr mukha Silp`
মাজুলীৰ মুখা শিল্প

`ei Silp shoMrokkhoN`
এই শিল্প সংৰক্ষণ

01 Converts as you type

Each word changes as you write it. Backspace takes back one Roman letter, and pasted Roman text is converted too.

02 Every key on one chart

The বর্ণমালা chart lists the key for each letter in barnamala order, and floats beside your text while you type.

03 Plain text files, offline

Save and open ordinary .txt files that any editor can read, on a computer or a phone, with or without internet.

USE IT FOR

Writing down oral histories and song texts · Captions and labels for collections · Notices and letters in your own script · Volunteers without a script keyboard

Write your heritage in its own script.

Free for heritage societies, language groups, schools, cultural trusts and village committees. We'll help your volunteers learn the keys in an afternoon.
